

STATE ASSEMBLY WILL CONCLUDE SESSION TODAY

Challenge of Horner's Condition Threatened to Delay Finish

BULLETIN
Springfield, Ill., June 5.—(AP)—The Illinois legislature ended its special session on schedule today after the senate voted down a sudden move to prolong the session in case "some emergency" arose out of Governor Horner's illness.

Final adjournment of house and senate came at 1:30 after the house passed the $5,200,000 deficiency appropriation to pay increased old age pensions.

Springfield, Ill., June 5.—(AP)—Governor Horner's physical capacity to perform the duties of his office was questioned in the state senate today but a sudden move to delay adjournment of the legislature's special session was defeated.

Senator Nicholas L. Hubbard, Mt. Pulaski Democrat, declared the General Assembly should merely recess instead of adjourn "in case some emergency arises." He said:

"I have been told no one can see the governor for at least two weeks. The governor is not physically able to take any action on any matter whatsoever. In effect, this state is without a governor."

"I think we should recess rather than adjourn sine die, in case some emergency arises."

Immediately, however, the Senate voted 25 to 15 for final adjournment of the special session at the conclusion of today's session.

Without debate, the House later concurred in the Senate adjournment resolution, apparently assuring the end of the session when the two Houses finish work today.

Pension Bill Passed

One of the last remaining bills, the $5,200,000 appropriation to pay increased old age pensions, was passed by the House and sent to Governor Horner. The appropriation is to provide for the previously-enacted increase of maximum pensions from $30 to $40 monthly, as is to come from the state's general revenues without added taxation.

Last weekend Governor Horner was removed by ambulance to a summer home at Winnetka, on Lake Michigan. Senator Hubbard's statement was the first to be made in the five-weeks' old special session challenging the ailing governor's physical ability to perform official acts.

Legislative leaders earlier had predicted the special session would end with today's sessions.

Replacement of Dr. W. E. Sunderman of Charleston on the Illinois Normal School Board was requested in a resolution adopted by the state Senate today.

The resolution urged Governor Horner to appoint a successor to Dr. Sunderman whose re-appointment was turned down by the upper House last year, but who has continued to serve on the board, the resolution stated, after expiration of his term in 1939.

Senator Dixon Signer

Senators in whose name the resolution was offered last yesterday were Melvin Thomas (D-Charleston), George C. Dixon (R-Dixon), Nicholas L. Hubbard (D-Mt. Pulaski), R. C. MacDowling (R-Macomb), R. G. Cisenberry (R-Murphysboro) and L. C. Siebens (D-Gridley).

Without debate, the Senate confirmed more than 200 appointments of Governor Horner to various state departments, boards and commissions. The list included 163 public administrators of estates.

Defeated by the Senate, 25 to 8, was the bill by Rep. Calvin D. Johnson (R-Belleview) to permit property taxes to be paid in five instead of two installments annually.

Notable Accomplishment

Most notable accomplishment of the special session was passage of amendments to the old age assistance act raising the maximum monthly award from $30 to $40.

The pension bill, given final approval yesterday by the House and sent to Governor Horner for his signature, also permits blind persons over 65 not receiving blind pensions to obtain old age awards and will provide funds for "necessary" medical care of pensioners instead of "temporary" medical care specified in the present law.

Administration leaders estimated liberalization of the old age pension measure would cost about $5,000,000 a year, half of which would be paid by the federal government and half by the state.

Another measure given final approval by the Senate yesterday exempts Illinois employers from paying unemployment compensation contributions on that part of employees' salaries in excess of $3,000 a year.

St. Charles, Mo., June 5.—(AP)—A five-time widow, Mrs. Emma Sarana Hepperman, 46, has been charged with murder in the poison death of her seventh husband, Tony Hepperman.

Two other marriages ended in divorce, she said.

Justice of the Peace Gus Temme issued the murder warrant yesterday after a coroner's jury had returned a verdict stating that Hepperman, 53-year-old Wentzville farmer, had died May 28 of poison.

Last March, Mrs. Hepperman advertised herself in a want ad as a "housekeeper for a motherless home." Hepperman answered the ad.

"What I really want to do is get married," state police quoted her as telling Hepperman. Shortly afterwards they were married. Hepperman's death six weeks later brought an investigation that resulted in the murder charges.

Mrs. Hepperman told Prosecuting Attorney David A. Dyer she married Charles Schwack of Steel-

THOMAS SULLIVAN CALLED TO FINAL REST LAST NIGHT

Death Came to Retired Pharmacist at His Family Home

Thomas Sullivan, life-long resident of Dixon, who for a period of three score years had been engaged in the retail drug business, from which he retired about four weeks ago, passed away at his home, 203 Lincoln Way last night about 11 o'clock. He had been in failing health but had appeared some better yesterday and the end came peacefully while he slept.

Mr. Sullivan was born in Dixon, March 1, 1864, the son of Timothy and Helen McDonough Sullivan. He spent his entire life time in this city and as a young man took up pharmacy, which became his life work and in which he was active until a few weeks ago, when he disposed of his business to Joseph Villiger. He is survived by his widow; two daughters, Mrs. David Murphy and Miss Katherine of this city and one son, Dr. Tim Sullivan of Sterling. One brother, Tim of Dixon and a host of friends also survive to mourn the passing of one of the city's best loved business men.

Funeral services will be held at the family residence at 9 o'clock Friday morning and at 9:30 at St. Anne's Catholic church, the Rev. Fr. French officiating. Interment will be in Oakwood.

"Tom" Sullivan was one of Dixon's most highly respected citizens. During his long years in business he was always the same, quiet, unassuming, friendly, forebearing and honorable in all his affairs. His interest in his family was intense and in his native city constant. The condolences of the entire community go out to the bereaved family.

Amateur Radio Talk With Foreigners is Prohibited by Order

Washington, June 5.—(AP)—The Federal Communications Commission today prohibited amateur radio communications by stations in the country with foreign stations.

A formal announcement of the action did not say why it was taken but a spokesman declared that "undoubtedly" it was due to the European war.

There are approximately 55,000 amateurs licensed by the commission.

The prohibition, which became effective immediately, does not apply to amateur communication between licensed amateur stations in the continental United States and its territories and possessions.

Likewise it does not bar United States citizens, authorized to operate amateur stations in the Philippine Islands or the Canal Zone, from communicating with amateurs in the United States.

It was indicated that the Champaign council would take a final vote on the proposal next Tuesday.

Plan Campaign to Raise Red Cross' Quota for County

With Lee county contributions to American Red Cross' war relief fund far short of the county chapter's quota of $2,600, Chairman Robert W. Sterling this morning intimated that an organized campaign to raise the direly-needed amount will be made next week. Mr. Sterling made the intimation after a conference with Lawrence Ryan, field representative of the national Red Cross, who is making calls on the various chapters in the northern part of the state to arouse interest and enthusiasm in the great humanitarian work the Red Cross is doing. Voluntary contributions to the Lee county quota totaled $649.32 this morning, and reports from national headquarters stated that last night $6,000,000 of the $20,000,000 needed had been raised.

Chicago, June 5.—(AP)—A total of $511,070 has been raised by the 126 Red Cross chapters in Illinois toward the national goal of $20,000,000 for European war relief. William M. Baxter, Jr., St. Louis, manager of the Red Cross mid-western area, announced today.

Nineteen Illinois chapters met original quotas and went on to raise still more funds, he said. Hundreds of women volunteers in the state are working to fill quotas for refugee garments, surgical dressings and hospital garments.

Fifty-two Illinois chapters making garments for refugees expect to complete 43,000 garments by September 1. In the 17-state mid-western area about 100,000 garments have been sent to the war zones since September 1 and Baxter said an additional 75,000 were expected by next September 1. The area was expected to provide 200,000 surgical dressings in the year's time.

Washington, June 5.—(AP)—The treasury has agreed to spread payment of its $8,000,000 tax claim against M. L. Annenberg over a seven-year period, provided the Philadelphia publisher pays interest on unpaid balances.

Guy T. Helvering, internal revenue bureau commissioner, said in reporting details of the tax settlement today that the principal plus interest on a seven-year installment basis might bring Annenberg's total payments to $10,000,000.

AIRPLANES OVER SWEDEN

Stockholm, June 5.—(AP)—Air-raid alarms were sounded briefly in northern Sweden today when at least two foreign planes were sighted at great height over the iron ore port of Lulea, heavily fortified Boden and Pitea, another northern port.

The planes disappeared before they could be identified.

PROVISIONS FOR ANNUAL RELIEF, DEFENSE CARRY

Congressional Action is Advocated Today by Committees

BULLETIN
Springfield, Ill., June 5.—(AP)—Resolutions urging congress to stay in session during the European war crisis and establish a gigantic aviation base on the shore of Lake Michigan near Waukegan were adopted today by the Illinois house of representatives.

The house adopted by a voice vote the resolution sponsored by Rep. Lottie Holman O'Neill (R-Downers Grove) urging congress to stay in session "should emergencies develop requiring legislative consideration and action."

Washington, June 5.—(AP)—Approving a number of national defense provisions, the senate appropriations committee reported today an annual relief bill carrying $1,073,584,916, and an additional $125,000,000 in loans.

Senator Adams (D-Colo.), in charge of the measure, said he expected the senate to begin consideration of the bill tomorrow.

The committee adopted a provision for non-combatant military training of CCC youths with one minor change, a clause providing that this training shall not be restricted of race, color, or religion.

Sponsors said this was asked by negro organizations to assure training for youths of their race.

As sent to the senate, the relief bill appropriation total was $38,170,000 below the amount approved by the house, but this did not take into account an order directing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to provide $125,000,000 for relief loans to farmers.

The senate committee also approved a $975,650,000 WPA fund for the eight months beginning July 1. This is expected to provide a monthly WPA employment of 1,950,000.

Aliens, Etc., Barred

Provisions barring aliens, Communists, and Nazi Bund members from relief rolls also were approved without change from language adopted by the house.

Other developments were connected with national defense.

The house ways and means committee, in its search for money to finance growing defense costs, set a 10-man sub-committee to work to find a way to add at least $200,000,000 to the $656,000,000 in the pending defense tax bill.

A resolution recording congress as opposed to the transfers of any region in this hemisphere from one non-American nation to another was approved swiftly by the foreign committees of both the senate and house.

The senate military committee, in a hearing on "fifth column" matters, heard testimony favoring establishment of a "home defense force" and a "national industrial defense corps."

2,000,000 Men Battle Along New Front: Both Sides Claim Advance

Heart of France Feels Violent Blitzkrieg

(By The Associated Press)
Gen. Maxime Weygand's French Poilus were reported "holding solidly" late today in a titanic battle of 2,000,000 men raging along the 125-mile Somme-Aisne front as Hitler launched a violent new blitzkrieg into the heart of France.

By contrast, authorized German sources in Berlin asserted that the Nazi army's right wing was sweeping forward "on the broadest front"—heading south and west along the English channel coast toward Le Havre and Rouen. Le Havre, the vital link between France and England, was bombed by German planes in an apparent "softening up" attack yesterday. Rouen is about 25 miles inland from Le Havre on the Seine.

The German thrust was aimed at separating France from England. As the struggle surged to new heights of man-against-man ferocity, London reported that German "armored vehicles"—probably swift-striking motorcycle vanguards—had reached both sides of Amiens.

Typical Nazi Tactic

This would indicate a typical blitzkrieg tactic of speeding around strongly-fortified cities without attempting to storm or capture them.

Usually, such German units are not supported by infantry.

Berlin reported that Nazi dive-bombing Stuka planes had wrought "great destruction" and an "extremely demoralizing effect" in attacks on French tanks south of Abbeville, on the Somme front.

Many French tanks were reported "completely disabled".

Paris and the lower Seine river were the apparent objectives, seemingly in a mighty smash to turn the flank of the main Maginot line.

German dive-bombers and heavy artillery blasted at French infantry massed along the front, with the heaviest fury of the attack centering in the Laon-Soissons sector.

The whole battleline extended from Laon to Abbeville, 12 miles from the English channel.

Allies Hopeful

With the conflict still in too early a stage for decisive results, Premier Reynaud of France confidently predicted that the allies "can hope for a favorable issue of the struggle."

"France has decided to fight to the end with her British ally for the liberty of the world", Reynaud declared.

German infantry in massed grey waves assaulted the desperately-fighting Poilus, who knew that a major breakthrough now would imperil their beloved capital 70 miles distant.

Toward nightfall, the battle increased in violence in the stifling heat, smoke and dust of the fields. German bombers meanwhile raided an unidentified area in central France, and French fighting planes and anti-aircraft struck back.

Touched off by the German fuhrer himself from his headquarters on the western front, the massive attack began at 4:05 a. m. (9:05 p. m. Tuesday, C. S. T.) with a furious artillery barrage against the French lines.

Through Dava's Haze

While the Nazi air force thundered overhead, bombing and strafing, masses of uniformed German infantry moved forward.

The outcome of the war likely hinges on this second phase of Hitler's blitzkrieg which was launched at dawn against the Allied left wing in northern France. We couldn't say that of the battle of Flanders, world rocking though it was. But this may easily prove to be the decisive engagement.

If the Allies can stand up against this new onslaught—not to talk of throwing it back—until its fury is spent, they will have advanced their cause immeasurably, even though they have to give much ground.

But if Hitler is able to achieve his announced purpose of crushing the French armies, which are the Allied land bulwark just as the British navy is the bulwark of the seas, then to all intents he will have established his position in continental Europe.

It is difficult to see how Britain single-handed could oust him once he conquered France.

The Allies have made it clear that they are expecting to see more dark days before they see better, and they undoubtedly will. That doesn't mean they are whipped.

Mrs. Anna M. Moore, one of Dixon's three women attorneys, whose appointment as Circuit court reporter expired with the death of her sponsor, the late Judge Harry Edwards, has not decided on resumption of the practice of her profession, and probably will not reach a decision until late in the fall. ## Great Stores of Supplies Left in Flanders

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
With the Germany Army (By Telephone to Berlin), June 5.—(AP)—Stores of supplies left behind by the British expeditionary force in its withdrawal from Flanders, a German officer told me today, could equip 40 German divisions—forces equal to all those of Czechoslovakia before its dismemberment.

The abandoned supplies indicated the British had kept excellent lookout for the bodily wants of their soldiers.

Traveling some 200 miles along Germany's front in France and then toward the channel ports and finally into the great Flanders trap gave me a vast picture of the retreat of the B. E. F., France's army of the north and Belgium's defenders.

In following the French retreat along Germany's present south front, I was impressed by the fact that the French had abandoned cannons and munitions, as compared with the British leaving provisions.

As a speedy car hurried me along highway after highway in northern France, I saw cannon after cannon left by the wayside.

The German advance seemingly had been so rapid that Nazi labor battalions and highway constructors could not follow quickly enough to clear up as they had done in Holland and eastern Belgium and bring abandoned booty to collection centers.

Evidence of Fury
We had hardly crossed into France last Saturday, on a trip which kept us incommunicado until yesterday, when at Beaumont we saw evidence of the fury of Germany's Stukas—he dive bombers.

Some of France's heaviest tanks of the 30-ton type had come down a street running east and west.

Several bombs dropped on buildings at this intersection, blowing them to smithereens. The explosion apparently lifted the tanks out of their relative positions with the power of a tornado, for several of them were telescoped into one another, while half a dozen others were hurled against buildings.

Messerschmitt pursuit planes apparently followed the Stukas and machine-gunned officers and men as they crawled out of the tanks.

Whoever remained in tanks and was ready to continue on the way was surprised by the quickly approaching German tanks before he could gather his wits.

Ghostly Sights
These tanks finished what the Stukas and Messerschmitts—dive bombers and fighting planes—left undone. It was a ghastly sight but nothing compared with what we encountered Sunday on a road near Enclos outside Lille.

Here probably the greatest tank battle of the war—and all times—had taken place.

English Bibles, French prayer-books, rosaries, detective novels, bloody helmets and grimy uniforms were scattered in grotesque confusion.

We stepped cautiously among hand grenades which nobody had had time to remove.

We saw letters from wives and sweethearts strewn around, some written in French, some in English, but all ending with the wish that the recipient might return home safely. Instead, his mangled corpse lay a short distance away.

We passed through such French places of World war memory as Cambrai, Arras, Bethune, St. Omer, Lille, St. Pol and Arras.

Everywhere the picture was the same.

The blitzkrieg had moved like a windstorm, striking this or that locality, as an American tornado does, while the next place is untouched.

This war has set in motion one of the most tragic migrations in history.

There is nothing more pitiable than these endless streams of human misery that I have encountered again and again in northern France and Belgium.

Death and Suffering
Death and suffering are bad enough for the men in uniform.

But these hundreds of thousands of old men, women and children and infants, plodding along as the merciless sun burns their faces or backs, had no choice.

Swiss-German Air Battle Reported; Five Planes Lost

Berlin, June 5—(AP by Radio)—A Swiss-German air battle was reported today by a German spokesman to have resulted in the shooting down of one German and four Swiss planes.

The spokesman asserted that the Swiss attacked first. The battle, which occurred either Monday night or early Tuesday, was said to have taken place over French territory where the Germans were "carrying out operations".

(The Swiss high command announced yesterday that "two or three" German planes were believed to have been shot down by Swiss fighters over the Swiss Jura mountains. The loss of one Swiss plane was acknowledged.)

(The German planes were believed by the Swiss to have strayed from squadrons attacking the Rhone valley in France. They were said to have crossed the Swiss frontier in the face of anti-aircraft fire.)

The German spokesman said the battle started when the Swiss force shot down one of the German planes.

The War Today—

ped, for they are not, but they are in for some tough sessions. Certainly the world will be forced to witness another blood-bath.

If my language seems blunt, it is meant to be. We had best face the facts. When the Nazi chieftain set his great war machine rolling again this morning he headed for quick victory or defeat, for he hasn't resources for a protracted struggle. It won't be long now before we can see the end of the road.

The full scope of the Nazi drive wasn't apparent at the outset. The initial assault was against the Allied positions on the Somme and Aisne rivers along a front of 125 miles between the English Channel and the vicinity of Laon. All this area west of Amiens on the Somme saw some of the fiercest fighting in the World war.

It looked very much as though the Germans were headed for Paris by way of the well-trodden valley of the Oise.

The Allied front in this sector has been newly-consolidated and strengthened under command of Generalissimo Weyand. Over a considerable stretch of the line under attack this morning the Allies had the Somme river between them and the enemy, and at numerous strategic points the Allies also held on the northern bank of the river bridgeheads which had been taken during the past few days.

These advantages the Allies will need, for the Nazi assault was described as violent.

The brunt of the land fighting must, of course, fall on the French since the British expeditionary force as a whole was temporarily put out of action in the battle of Flanders. If the French can hold the onrush for a bit, the English will be able to reorganize and get reinforcements to their colleagues.

There has been no indication that Hitler intends to try his invasion of England now. Indeed, it would be the wildest sort of gamble to undertake such an operation before the Germans have consolidated their positions in Flanders and have reconditioned the channel ports.

There can be little doubt, however, that Hitler will order intensive bombing of channel shipping and British ports and industrial areas. The English will have to fight their way across the channel against the Nazi airforce in order to carry aid to their Allies. As to hammering British industrial zones, the Germans thus far haven't had much success in getting by the anti-aircraft defenses and British fighting planes.

However, destruction of British industries, ports and shipping is essential if Hitler ultimately is to achieve his ambition of crushing England and putting his troops ashore. So one would expect some heavy assaults against Britain by air in conjunction with the offensive against the French.

CIO Asks Dismissal of Suit for Damages

Cleveland, June 5—(AP)—The Congress of Industrial Organizations asked Federal district court to dismiss a suit for $7,500,000 damages brought by Republic Steel Corp. under anti-trust statutes resulting from the 1937 "little steel" strike.

Council for C. I. O. cited the recent United States Supreme court ruling that a CIO union's sit-down strike "of the most brutal and wanton character" against the Apex Hosiery Co. did not constitute violation of the Sherman act. In his written motion, Attorney Marvin C. Harrison contended the Apex decision established a precedent under which acts of violence alleged by Republic "do not create a cause of action under the anti-trust laws".

Dean Fans Glow of His Fading Baseball Career

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT

Dallas, June 5—(AP)—Ol' Diz Dean's light grew fainter today—sadly, down here in Texas where its glare was blinding just a decade ago.

The plodding farm boy who quit the rear ranks of an infantry unit at Fort Sam Houston 11 years ago, to lend professional baseball his brilliance and eccentricities, still fans the flicker remaining from a stunning career.

Diz Dean is back in the Texas league, optioned to Tulsa by the Chicago Cubs on a 24-hour recall basis. The comeback he talked three months ago has died in the muscles of a tired pitching arm.

Diz doesn't have to take the humiliating return to the minors. The great righthander and Mrs. Dean have been careful with their money. It isn't the money—it's the gabby one's heart and pride that will be pitching for Tulsa.

Sunday, when the crowd is large, Diz will throw against Fort Worth at Tulsa.

Dean's Record
Not a man in 10 years has touched his mark of 303 strikeouts in 1931—the memorable year

jured in the accident Saturday night on route 26 on the Dixon-Polo road, returned home Tuesday evening from the hospital.

that saw him win 26 games, lose 10; post an earned-run average of only 1.53; pitch 304 innings; work the full nine innings in 28 of his 41 games; finally go up to the St. Louis Cards and glory.

Only one man, an old-timer named Harry Ables, who struck out 325 batters years before Dean, has more whiffs to his credit.

Remember when Diz, in '31, wanted to marry Patricia Nash, the present Mrs. Dean, on second base in Houston one night? Well, President Fred Ankenman would not let him.

Remember when Ankenman advertised widely that Diz Dean would hurl on a ladies' night, almost had a stroke when a "doctor" called at noon and said Diz would be out 30 days with a sore arm? Well, Diz bounced into the park 30 minutes before game time, and said the "doctor" was a practical joking friend.

Still Chuckling

Still chuckling, the great one went out before the biggest crowd of the season and shut out Shreveport.

That's the Dean Fred Ankenman nursed to fame. Says Fred: "Glad he's back, but I'm glad someone else has the headache. He's got too much of a sense of humor for me."

Dean asked to return to the minors where he hopes regular mound work and practice will develop a sidearm motion that will once again make him a big league hurler.

Nudelman Says He Will Investigate Needs of School

Springfield, Ill., June 5—(AP)—State Finance Director S. L. Nudelman told a Senate committee late yesterday he would investigate the need of the Southern Illinois State Normal University at Carbondale for $30,000 which was appropriated to the institution by the 61st General Assembly but ordered held in reserve by Governor Horner.

Nudelman told the committee which was created to inquire into the status of the appropriation that if Roscoe Pulliam, president of the school, could "show that they need the money, I will recommend to the governor that the money, or as much of it as is needed, be released".

Under questioning by Senator Wallace R. Karraker (D-Jonesboro), chairman and other members of the committee, Nudelman said he had held up expenditure of the $30,000 which he said was voted to the Carbondale university in addition to a regular $1,175,000 appropriation for the present biennium.

"I've saved $30,000 of the taxpayers' money", the finance director asserted. "That school still has $39,000 in unobligated funds, $20,000 of which could be diverted to pay salaries. It hasn't been shown to me that the $30,000 appropriation is needed".

"Emergency Conditions"

Senator R. G. Crispenberry (R-Murphysboro) said that the school has been operating under "emergency conditions" and that the extra appropriation, now being held in reserve, would have to be released to permit plans for accepting an expected 300 additional students next fall.

Nudelman volunteered a denial of reports which he said he had heard that the expenditure of the funds was being held up because Senator Crispenberry had sponsored the appropriation, terming the inference a "damned lie".

Senator Karraker said he doubted the right of Nudelman or Horner to designate the appropriation as a reserve fund.

"I disagree with you", Nudelman replied: "I think it would be poor practice indeed if the governor could not say to his code departments 'I want you to economize'." Nudelman told the committee an investigator for the department of finance would interview President Pulliam next Monday.

People's Column

There seems to be a reduction in the number of billboard ads for the distilled liquor in particular. The brewed beverages are still using some but of a much reduced type, largely type appeals to use this or that brand. Also, the cautioning signs of various groups admonishing the traveler against mixing alcohol and gasoline are increasing generally. Many localities have attained elimination of these signs advertising various alcoholic beverages through community sentiment. It only takes a little pressure and public concern to clean up any evil. If two or three citizens will just take the lead, there are always others who will join such a crusade once it is started. G. B. R.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Excessive partiality for one foreign nation and excessive dislike of another cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side, and serve to excite and even second the arts of influence on the other. Real patriots who may resist the intrigues of the favorite are liable to become suspected and odious, while its tools and dupes usurp the applause and confidence of the people to surrender their interests." From the Farewell Address.

"No Discussion"

The Senate has passed without discussion or roll-call, the Military Dissection Bill of Senator Walsh of Massachusetts.

This bill provides heavy penalties against "whoever advises, counsels, urges, or solicits any member of the army or navy . . . to disobey the laws or regulations . . . or to disobey the lawful orders of a superior . . . or whoever publishes or distributes any book, pamphlet, paper, print, article, letter or other writing" for the same purpose.

With the aim of this proposed law no one can quarrel. Discipline and obedience to legal orders is just as important in a democratic army as in any other. Attempts to subvert the loyalty of the army and navy cannot and will not be tolerated.

But in 1935, when this bill was last considered, it aroused fatal opposition on the ground that it was too broad, opened the way for all sorts of persecutions and censorship. Today it whoops through the Senate without discussion and without a roll-call.

The country's situation is not yet so grave that legislation of this sweeping kind should be passed without hearings and thorough discussion.

Simple Honesty

Like a tall tree on a prairie stands an honest man. It was Hamlet who noted that "to be honest, as this world goes, is to be one man picked out of ten thousand."

Not that most men are dishonest in the sense that they would steal. They are not. If they were, even such rudimentary civilization as we have achieved would fall apart.

But to be really honest, in the sense of maintaining complete integrity in the face of disad-vantage—that is something rare. It has an antique flavor, and it warms one to find it.

William Brandt of St. Louis is 27, secretary-organizer of the A. F. of L. Central Trades and Labor Unions. As receiver for a local movie operators' union which had become corrupt he risked his life, he set things straight, and then refused a $5,000 bonus offered by the grateful union members. He wouldn't even talk about it much, except to say, "I have never been a reformer; I have just tried to do the best I know . . ."

More men to steer unwaveringly that simple course—that's what the world needs.

News BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

Washington, June 4—Men who man our defenses have not relished outside agitation for the United States springing to the aid of the allies with military equipment.

They have kept their own counsel because they have not known what might be required of them eventually by the administration, but their fundamental reasoning has dissolved hopes that intervention now would do the allies matterial good in their existing situation. For instances:

British War Minister Eden, in his broadcast to the United States made a point of the pressing British need solely of tanks and planes. The United States army has about 250 light and medium tanks and 150 combat cars, none of which was built to stand against the type of heavily armored German equipment used in Flanders. We have no 80-ton tanks and there is some incidental doubt here as to whether the Germans have them. Such heavy equipment would chew up roads, could not get across ordinary bridges and would bog down in fields.

At any rate, the U. S. Army could spare no more than 200 light and medium tanks to the allies and these could not be put into action abroad for months. They would have to be mobilized, Trans-Atlantic transportation for them would have to be arranged and carried out. Above all, there is no reason to believe they would swing the balance in the favor of the allies when they did finally arrive on the scene and take part in the conflict.

As a plan to dispatch 2,000 planes was originally advocated by the able retired Major General John F. O'Ryan of New York. It would be possible, if both the Army and Navy air arms were depleted fully to scrape up 2,000 planes of all categories. Some of these would be obsolete. All that would be left to the Army and Navy would be training planes. If trouble broke out in Latin-America or elsewhere on this hemisphere, the U.
S. would be incompetent to deal with it from the air.

The mobilization and transportation of 2,000 planes across the ocean to the war zone would be a more difficult task than the dispatch of tanks.

It is clear to all military minds such ventures would be useless in the existing military situation.
They would be useless any time unless the allies brace themselves immediately and definitely block the German advance. The fate of Britain and France must rest with themselves alone until fall in any event.

Such experienced advocates of intervention as O'Ryan must agree with these conclusions. Apparently their hope is that the mere promise of such aid now would be of great psychological advantage to bolster allied morale and demoralize the Germans. If Hitler permitted the Germans to learn of it. And their motive apparently is that this would be the easiest way to do a job that we have to do by fighting if the allies lost.

The question in military minds is whether the allies may not lose anyway. In that case we have sacrificed our best defensive equipment.

It is true this government has some scraps of equipment lying around which are not so vital to defense as planes and tanks. The Army has hundreds of old 75-millimeter guns which have not been modernized. The French could use these against the German tanks more effectively than our light and medium tanks. The navy has many old destroyers, some of which have recently been recom-missioned by Roosevelt.

But it must be admitted there is no equipment available here which is sure to swing the result in Europe. On this side of the water the equipment is a reasonable assurance against the establishment of attacking bases in this hemisphere. On the other side it would stack no higher than a few pawns.

The British press has lately been criticizing the United States for failing to supply materials, but you may have noticed British officials have not joined that chorus. They know the facts of the British Purchasing Commission's experience in the United States. Nine months after the war began their purchases were still mere nibbles compared with the size of the task they had at hand although they had ample exchange and balances available for purchases as high as their needs could possibly require.

A Canadian mother whose son had just gone abroad has written me a letter bitterly complaining of "the cowardice of the United States" in a tone which is common among allied supporters . . .
My reply was:

"I know it is only natural for Canadians generally to feel the same emotions expressed in your letter, but I hope you may find some countervailing assurance in the definite promise of President Roosevelt to defend Canada against invasion. This promise is not questioned by any American source I know of, and even if it should ever be questioned, the demands of military strategy for self defense would require it to be kept with the utmost vigor and might that my country could muster."

This may seem remote solace to your cause but you must not forget there are American mothers with children also, and many of them naturally prefer to de-

SERIAL STORY

AN EYE FOR A GAL BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Warned by Coach Hurd to be careful of what he says about the Tollivars, Rossy moves in, and his new home is usually comfortable. Judy is doubtful, and openly amused by the hill boy. Rossy awakes one day to hear a shrill voice downstairs. It is his sweetheart, Hannah Shriver, come from the hills to go to school.

CHAPTER III

ROSSY McAFEE, listening to his sweetheart from the vantage of the dark head of the stairs, wanted to laugh and swear at the same time. He was shocked at sight of Hannah Shriver; he had never before thought of her as uncouth. Dr. Tollivar and Judy listened politely.

"Well, of course," Dr. Tollivar was saying, in his quiet way, "you no doubt can do as well as Rossy.
But—"

"I know, father!" Judy cried.
"Mrs. Patterson said, just this afternoon, that the Kingsley girl who waited table in the dining hall had not come yet, and she heard indirectly she was married and wouldn't come back to school."
Judy turned to Hannah. "You could wait table, couldn't you?"
You could then have the other girl's room and place. Otherwise I'm afraid we're filled."

"Can't I see Rossy McAfee?"
"I don't think he's come in yet.
I'll tell him you're here and send him over to see you when he comes."

ROSSY, still shocked, and ashamed because he felt this way, slipped back along the hall.
Instead of going into his room, he crept down the back stairs and out into the yard. He saw Dr.
Tollivar and Hannah, two dark figures, going through the dusk of the campus. Then, as if coming in from the gym, he entered the front door, Judy, reading under the lamp, smiled at him.

"You had a caller."
"Who?"
"You'd never guess. Some one very dear to you."

"Maw?"
"Guess again."
"Cousin Steve Hogg?"
"Cold, cold as ice."

Rossy shook his head. "Couldn't guess then. Tell me."
"Your own sweetheart, Hannah Shriver, and she's pretty, too; and I'll bet she's smart as anything.
She's coming to college. Dad's just taken her to the girls' cottage. Right after supper you're to go there and see her."

"Land sakes!" Rossy said, feigning surprise the best he could.
"What do you know about that?"

DR. TOLLIVAR, returning in a quarter of an hour, said Hannah was fixed up, and then sat down to supper. As soon afterward as possible Rossy walked through the dark to the cottage which housed the maids and waitresses. Hannah was waiting anxiously in the little parlor, and when Rossy entered she flung her arms around his neck and almost choked him with kisses.

"Rossy! I just had to come! I had to. I sold my calves and shoes and heifers and taken my canning club prize money, and here I am. If you can come to college, I can come too. All right —say something nasty, and I'll smack your ears back!"

"My heavens, Hannah!" Rossy said helplessly, and dropped on the couch. He examined Hannah.
She had got out of her baggy coat and into a nice dress, and she looked comely enough. Her hair was honey, like taffy made with honey and thick maple syrup. She had the gaunt fashion of all hill folk—the spare body, the tempered muscles, of those who work.

"You ought not to come here.
Hannah, I mean, without first looking after a room and board and things—why, they might not even let you in college after you got here!"

Illustrated by Carol Johnson.

Hannah threw her arms around his neck, almost choked him with kisses. . . . "I had to come to college, Rossy! If you can get educated, I can too!"

"Who's to keep me out, Rossy McAfee?"
"W—well, there's rules and regulations—"

"If they didn't keep you out, they wouldn't me. I know what's ailing you. You don't want me here. You're ashamed of me already."

"Now, Hannah—"
"Yah," she sneered. "I done heard about you! I got it straight.
You came on ahead of time. Put up at the big gun's place. With that Tollivar. Yes, I heard all about it. They set you up among the high-and-mighties. They said that girl was good-looking, and she is. They said you'd be took in by their meaty-mouthed ways, and here it's less than a week and they were right—"

Already warm with anger, Rossy demanded, "Who's they? How come all this here palaver is already being told back up to Hell'n-Damnation?" He was mystified, wondering how news of this sort could travel so far and so quickly.

"Yah!" his sweetheart sneered.
"Wouldn't you like to know?"
"I think you've been in here snooping and telling lies to yourself. All right, you're here. You're a graduate of the same high school as me, and they'll take you in.
But you've got to study here. I've found that out, talking with the seniors. You've got to fix yourself up, to, if you aim to stay—"

"How come I ain't fixed up all right? I'm fixed up as good as you.
You ain't much else than a pop-up foul ball, at that!"
"Ah, is that so?"
"Steve Hogg told me you was uppity and bigoted, and he was right to—"

"So it was Steve Hogg that told you all this! How come Steve knows so much?"
"He's been here, if you've got to know!"

"Steve Hogg been here? And didn't see me? How come? What's the idea? Is—is that hillbilly trying to spy on me? Coming down here and looking things over and going right back and stuffing your ear full! The low-down—"
"You can call your blood kin low-down if you want, but you shore ain't paying a high compliment to your own self, Rossy Mc-Afee!"

Heart of France—

through the dawn haze.

The heaviest blows were directed at the region of Amiens and along the Ailette canal, between Laon and Soissons. The latter is only 58 miles from Paris.

Berlin declared Paris the apparent target of the new blitzkrieg "practically exposed" to the German onslaught.

A highly significant development on the diplomatic front was reported meanwhile in London, where Soviet Russian circles indicated there was a good possibility of cooperation between the Russian Kremlin and the allies in the Black Sea and the eastern Mediterranean.

If true, a new bond of Anglo-Russian friendship might easily counter the pressure of Italy in the Mediterranean.

Hints Peace Offer Rejected

With Belgium crushed in a 26-day campaign, Hitler sent his legions striking into the heart of France with a hint that he had offered the allies some kind of peace terms—possibly a separate peace to only one side—and had been rejected.

Thus, in his "order of the day" addressed to his armies, the fuhrer declared:

"The plutocratic rulers of England and France, who pledged each other to avoid with all means the bloom of a new and better world, want a continuation of the war."

London several days ago reported that Hitler was expected to offer a separate peace in an attempt to split the allies—and Prime Minister Churchill pledged yesterday that Britain would fight "alone if necessary" to win the war.

Allied planes again retaliated for the Nazi aerial attack on Paris which left 254 dead and 652 wounded by bombing Friedrichshafen—home of the German Zeppelin and site of Nazi airplane engine factories.

Announces Celebration

The news that the Nazi legions had struck anew was announced to the German people by Adolf Hitler in a special message, in which he said his armies were again on the march "to fight for continuation of the liberty and future of our people."

At the same time Hitler decreed a national celebration of eight days for the German victory in Flanders.

All evidence pointed to the beginning of a new and more terrible phase of "total war" for Europe.

Britain, hurt by what Prime Minister Churchill himself called the "colossal military disaster" in Flanders, turned to the new world.

and particularly the United States, for comfort if not actual aid.

Germany, her army triumphantly proclaiming the Flanders episode as "the greatest destructive battle of all times" and for Britain "one of the greatest catastrophes in history," pointed toward the "complete destruction" of the Allies.

Italians Nervous

Italy, still on the fence but still completely ready for an immediate plunge into the war on Germany's side, found her people becoming nervous in the on-again-off-again atmosphere. Rank and file Italians privately said that "if we're going to fight, let's get it over with."

The man-in-the-street in London accepted his prime minister's declaration to the House of Commons yesterday that the empire would carry on the fight until "the new world x x x steps forth to the rescue and liberation" of the old world as meaning that the United States would enter the war if the worst came to the worst for the allies.

The British press generally interpreted Churchill's remark as intended to assure the United States that Britain would never surrender her fleet so long as the empire held together, and to offset any defeatism in the United States.

British Encouraged

The British people seemed encouraged by the attitude of the United States toward the war, and some quarters even suggested that the United States could give the allies valuable help by assisting in the rearmament of the British expeditionary force, which lost a tremendous amount of equipment in the Flanders battle.

Britons left to a secret session of parliament, probably next Tuesday, any recriminations in connection with this great defeat.

The German high command made the most of it.

In a special announcement from fuhrer Hitler's headquarters at the front, the high command proclaimed the battle officially ended and presented its score sheet, showing 1,200,000 French, English, Belgian and Dutch prisoners taken, the seizure and destruction of vast amounts of allied arms and equipment, the destruction of approximately 3,500 allied airplanes and the sinking and damaging of scores of allied warships including the sinking of five cruisers and 13 destroyers.

The Germans asserted 10,252 German officers and men were killed, 8,643 are missing and 42,323 were wounded. They said allied casualties could not yet be estimated. They said they lost only 432 of their own planes.

have definite designs" on the new world.

"If England and France are conquered," Wallace said in a speech last night, "The Americans will be the next objective."

Reasons for the army's manifest concern over the potentialities of conditions in some parts of the western hemisphere were outlined yesterday in a closed meeting of the house military committee by General George C. Marshall, chief of staff.

General Marshall, some members said later, named five countries in Latin America where he declared "fifth column" activities were cause for apprehension.

Hint of Negotiation

There was a hint yesterday from Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) of the senate naval committee that the United States might be negotiating for military bases in Central and South America. This was denied, however, by Roosevelt at his press conference.

Walsh was asked by a colleague on the senate floor if the acquisition of additional bases were not essential for the defense of Latin America. He replied:

"In my opinion the government has that in mind now and is making arrangements to do that now."

The exchange occurred during debate on a bill providing for a cord on naval air bases around the continental United States, plus an increase in naval air strength to 10,000 planes and 16,000 pilots.

The bill, which calls for expenditure of $2,250,000,000 to be paid from future appropriations, received senate approval and was sent to the house for concurrence in minor amendments.

The house, meanwhile, was approving a compromise $1,492,512,750 naval appropriation bill for the coming fiscal year.

Other developments yesterday included:

Charles Edison resigned as secretary of navy effective June 24, to accept the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in New Jersey. The White House has given no indication who will be his successor.

Formation of the Tennessee Powder Company, to supply France and Great Britain with smokeless powder, was announced by the Allied Purchasing Mission. The plant, to be situated near Memphis, will be operated by the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company, but the allies will retain complete financial control.

STAG AT PLUM HOLLOW TOMORROW

There are big things planned for the men at Plum Hollow Country club tomorrow with the first stag of the season calling together all the "good fellows". Frank L. Randall said today that about 150 males are expected to enjoy the event. Twenty-two excellent prizes are to be offered for the special events. Hazards will be included at every hole and there will be contests in putting, driving and approaching. The evening entertainment will include singing by various groups and plenty of refreshments. The event is scheduled to start between three and four o'clock.

WALTON TO JOLLET

Walton's baseball team, member of the Illinois State League, will postpone its Sunday game with Steward and go instead to Joliet for a game with the prison team. The Steward-Walton game will be played at the end of the league season.

UNDERWATER MINING

Earl Charvat went panning for gold in Rock river last night—and was successful. A bunch of the boys "were whooping it up" in a swimming frolic up beyond the dam when Eddie Christmas lost a ring. Young Charvat plunged into eight feet of water and on the fourth time up he produced the lost jewelry.

GOLF MATCH TOMORROW

Rochelle, Sterling, DeKalb, Oregon and Dixon are scheduled for a five-way golf match here at the Dixon Country club tomorrow.

GAMES TONIGHT

In the seventh night of softball at the Airport diamond tonight, the Borden and Moose Lodge will meet in the first game and Reynolds and State Hospital in the night cap. It is reported that the lodge lads are to be decked out in new uniforms. John Jensen, a student at Drake, has arrived for his vacation and will appear on the mound for the Borden team. Both the milkmen and the Moose lads will be seeking their first victory in three starts. Reynolds have won two and the Hospital team has lost one.

SLUGGING DELUXE

Earl Kelchner, catcher for the Freeman's team is leading the club in batting with five hits in 11 trips to the plate. That's a .454 percentage which is good enough in any ball park—it maintained. Earl has played in three games with the Freeman's who now share the lead with the High Life. Each club is undefeated in three games.

LEGION TO PLAY STERLING

The following boys, members of the Junior American Legion team, are requested to meet at the Legion hall Friday night at 7 o'clock: Arnold, Shank, Vaile, Alexander, Sloan, Kelly, Egler, Thompson, McGraham, Knack, Tette, Herrington and Lundbloom. The boys are urged to attend this important meeting and hear arrangements for the game at Sterling Saturday afternoon. The game will start at 3 o'clock and the lineups will be published in tomorrow evening's paper.

STOP AND LOOK BEFORE CASTING

By Charley Johnson

The surest way to catch a fish, when bait casting, is to drop an appropriate lure three or four feet beyond the point where you believe the fish is likely to be lying. When the lure, so placed, is reeled in, it will come right past the fish, affording him an easy opportunity to take a smack at it. Some persons who pretend they are fishermen get out on a lake and throw hardware by the hour in just any old aimless direction, long or short casts, it makes no difference to them. Then, when they come in empty-handed, which is more than likely, they'll say: "Fish just weren't hitting today—I threw everything at them but the tackle box."

Fish Sense

If a fellow can get any fun out of that kind of exercise, let him, but don't waste any sympathy on him, for he doesn't deserve it. If he really wanted to be more successful, he'd use some fish sense and try to give Mr. Fish his egg on toast, served on a tray in bed, if that is what he wants.

Of course, there are times, such as when fishing for muskies or large-mouth bass over a wide bar in the middle of a lake, that lack of aim and direction makes less difference, but for most success, the cast should be planned and the lure placed to within a foot of where it should go. This accuracy can be attained with practice. It is not sufficient to say the casting should be done "along the shore," or "around weed beds." There are certain specific points where fish are most likely to be found.

If your object is a snag, log, rock, or clump of weeds that is either protruding above the water, or is submerged, and which may be sheltering a fish, don't be satisfied with a single cast that will fall somewhere between you and the object. If some old hunker is resting there, he may hear the slap of the lure on the water, but by the time he gets his spectacles on, the bait will have been jerked away.

Wake Him Up

Drop the lure a few feet back of the object. That should awaken any sleeping beauty, so that by the time the exotic morsel comes dancing along past his nose, he can make a ready grab at the forbidden fruit. And if you don't rouse him the first cast, offer your lure to him several times more. If he is in deep water, you may have to send a lure down after him.

If you are fishing an extensive weed bed, attach a weedless lure and drop it among the rushes or pads—not at their fringe. A fish, back some distance from the fringe, may stalk the lure as it is being retrieved and strike when it drops into open water.

Any good fisherman knows that a few minutes of intelligent casting in a single likely spot may make the day a success.

STARS OF STATE LEAGUE DEFEAT HOUSE OF DAVID

Short Field Handicaps Travelers in Game At Walton

The all-star team of the Illinois State League "got in the hair" of the House of David players at Walton in a feature game yesterday afternoon and won a surprising 16 to 4 game.

There are several genuine alibis which the Davids might offer, and strongest perhaps is the handicap of the small field which prevented them from playing deep enough to snag the slugging stars who had a field day around the bases. Another thing, the bearded boys evidently expected some fast-ball pitching and when it failed to appear, they just couldn't connect. Only a fair sized crowd witnessed the game.

Schroeder Not Used

Mike Schroeder, pitching his first season for the Davids, was not used on the mound and was saved instead for the travelers assignment at Peru last night under the arm. Schroeder had pitched Maytown to an 8 to seven victory over the Davids in September of 1934 and it was a disappointment to the fans that he was not used yesterday.

The House of David used three men on the mound. Campbell allowed six hits, Gardner permitted four and Tally allowed 12.

The hard-hitting all-stars used 17 players from five of the eight league teams and they collected 22 hits in the game. The apple-slapping of the stars had the Davids puzzled and they began to conserve their strength for the night game.

"Pepper Game"

The famous "pepper game" in the fifth inning with Tally, Tucker and Anderson participating provided the fans with some real entertainment.

Hardest of the stars' hitters were Miller of Dixon with three in five trips to the plate, Negro of Maytown with two for two, B. Welty of Amboy with four in six trips, Knauer of West Brooklyn with two in three times up, Friel of Maytown with three for three, and Gleason of Walton with two for two.

Don Welty, manager of the Walton club, acted as manager of yesterday's victors.

Ambitious Billy Conn to Meet Gus Lesnevich Tonight

Detroit, June 5.—(AP)—It's no secret that heavyweights pay the biggest income taxes among the boxers.

That's the principal reason Billy Conn, a 22-year-old Pittsburgh Irishman who prefers dollars to a title, will make his third defense of the 175-pound championship tonight his last. Hereafter, Conn says, he will campaign among the big boys for better or for worse.

Conn, who climbed to the championship 11 months ago, meets a man he has already conquered—Gus Lesnevich, of Cliffside Park, N. J. They fight over the 15-round route at Olympia indoor stadium and Co-Promoters Mike Jacobs and John Nelson talk of a turnout of 10,000 customers and gate receipts of around $35,000.

The charm of coin is not Conn's only reason for quitting as the 15th light-heavyweight champion in history. In recent months the six-foot-one-inch battler has filled out physically and appears destined to grow into a full-fledged heavyweight.

Future Possibilities

The ballyhoo for tonight's fight has been concerned not with the engagement at hand but with the possibility of a bout between either Conn or Lesnevich and Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis in Detroit in September.

Conn will not be the first light-heavyweight champion to quit his title for competition among the heavyweights, but precedent is against his chances for success.

Georges Carpentier, Jack Delaney and Tommy Loughran are among the men who found the heavyweight division no soft touch after mopping up in their own class.

Conn, who won the title from Melio Bettina July 13, came with a rush in the closing rounds to beat Lesnevich in New York November 17. At that time Lesnevich had not fought for nearly six months and his followers blamed his defeat on lack of endurance and sense of pace.

EVERS AND MCKINNON SNAG HONORS IN BIG 10 BASEBALL

Chicago, June 5.—(AP)—Walter (Hoot) Evers and George McKinnon did a pretty thorough job of sweeping honors in the hitting department of the Big Ten baseball campaign.

Third Baseman Bob Smith of Wisconsin won the batting championship, but Evers and McKinnon led or shared all the other honors.

Smith collected 15 hits in 34 times at bat for a .441 mark. McKinnon, Northwestern shortstop, got the most hits, 21, and shared the double-hitting lead with Fred Shinkovich of Northwestern, each hitting four. Northwestern and Illinois tied for the team title.

Evers, lanky sophomore outfielder of Illinois, hit five triples, three home runs, batted in 16 runs, had 37 total bases and scored 20 runs, tops in all five departments.

PAYCHEK MEETS ALLEN IN CHICAGO BOUT TONIGHT

Chicago, June 5.—(AP)—Heavyweight Johnny Paycheck of Des Moines has been kayaked only once in his career, but he got more headlines out of that one incident than out of all his other fights combined.

Tonight Paycheck makes his first ring appearance on the come-back trail—his first effort to redeem himself since Champion Joe Louis flattened him in the second round two months ago.

VFW TEAM IS LOOKING FOR WORTHY FOES

Baseball—of the hardball variety—took a sudden spurt in popularity this season with three clubs now operating in full swing in Dixon. The Knacks supply the need for players over 21, the Junior American Legion includes youths not yet 17, and the newly-organized Veterans of Foreign Wars team Manager Shultz fills in the gap of ages.

Thus far in the season the VFW team has lost to the State Hospital and trimmed the Legion foe and now looks around for new worlds to conquer. Hardball teams of that age are scarce and the team, managed by John (Friday) Shultz, welcomes the competition of any outsiders.

Team managers, interested in meeting the club here, are asked to address The Telegraph sports department for details and playing dates.

The club includes on its roster such experts of the game as: Williams, Webb, Leggett, Bush, Bugg, Youngmark, Miller, Pentland, Zelecki, Shonk, Kelchner and Shultz. Others, now returning from college, are expected to increase the team's power.

Working with Manager Shultz as coaches of the team are Ward Miller and Frank Daschbach, both of whom know their baseball from A to Z, and who are interested in promoting the project for players too young for the Knacks and too old for the Legion club.

This Sunday's assignment for the VFW has not been fully arranged, but it is possible that an out of town team may be the host.

SPRINGFIELD IS ONLY TEAM HOLDING BACK CEDAR RAPIDS

(By The Associated Press)

Springfield is the only team that is preventing Cedar Rapids from taking a long lead in the Three-Eye League.

The Brownies, since losing first place and dropping behind Cedar Rapids, have matched the pace-setters' onward rush. Only a game and a half separate the two teams, but Springfield is three games and a half ahead of third-place Clinton.

Cedar Rapids won again last night, 7 to 1, on Reynolds' five-hit pitching against Madison. Decatur scored three runs in the first inning, but Springfield bounced back to win, 8 to 5, scoring the final three runs in the last two innings.

Harris of Waterloo was in rare form, setting Clinton down with two hits for a 6 to 1 victory. It was the cellar team's second successive two-hitter and indicated Waterloo is ready to begin its climb out of the basement depths. Moline slugged out an 11 to 1 victory over Evansville, scoring seven runs in the first two innings. Evansville got 11 hits but airtight pitching in the pinches ruined their chances.

PITCHERS GIVE TRIBE POSITION IN JUNIOR LOOP

Cleveland Indians Were Only Ones to Improve Standing Yesterday

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

As long as everyone is certain the New York Yankees are going straight to their fifth consecutive American League pennant, it may seem time wasted to consider Cleveland's improved Indians.

But a team with all the sterling qualities of the Tribe deserves to get a word in edgewise.

The Indians were the only one of the American League leaders to improve their position yesterday, splitting a double-header with the Washington Senators, 2-7 and 5-2. This mediocre feat brought them within half a game of the pace-making Boston Red Sox and perhaps served as a hint of a rising power in the junior circuit.

The tipoff on the Tribe's position lies in the record of their pitchers. Lefty Al Smith, rescued from the minors this spring, got credit for the victory in the nightcap to bring his chart to five victories and no defeats. Al Milnar, another lefthander, has won seven and lost one. Bob Feller, the nonpareil, has won eight and lost two.

Not even the Cincinnati Reds, supposedly with the best-balanced pitching staff in the majors, can offer three such topnotch marks.

Are Sluggers Too

And pitching may mean the difference between Cleveland and Boston. The Red Sox are renowned sluggers. But the Indians are matching them. The combination of Lou Boudreau and Ray Mack is nothing short of miraculous and Rollie Hemley has settled down to be one of the best catchers in baseball.

Mel Harder, who could make the club go higher, had his ears pinned back again yesterday in the first game as the Senators rallied for five runs in the fourth. In the second game Smith held Washington in check until two were out in the ninth and Feller came in to make sure of the final out.

The Red Sox were stopped, 5-3, as the St. Louis Browns ended a seven-game losing streak. Jimmie Foxx, who had made only a single the day before, went hitless although Boston got 10 off Elden Auker, three more than the Browns.

The Yankees' parade was dethroned by the lefthanded slants of Chicago's Ed Smith and a 12-hit onslaught topped by Joe Kuhel's tenth and eleventh homers of the season. The score was 7-3.

Tigers Are Stopped

The third-place Detroit Tigers also were stopped, 8-6, at Philadelphia after getting four runs in the first frame. The A's hopped on Tommy Bridges and three successors for clusters of runs, among them homers by Bob Johnson and Wally Moses.

The Cincinnati Reds skidded to a 5-4 defeat at the hands of the New York Giants and lost a game

Spending Summer Here

Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Miller and five daughters arrived here Tuesday from Georgia and will spend the summer months in the furnished home of Mrs. Art Fuller. Mrs. Miller will be remembered as May Wolf, daughter of E. J. Wolf of this place. Both Rev. and Mrs. Miller were missionaries to India for several years.

Cousins Entertained
Miss Blanche Gilbert entertained at dinner Sunday her cousins Mrs. Eva Miller, Mrs. Rebecca Colwell, Misses Eunice and Lucy Gilbert. It is indeed very gratifying news to Blanche Gilbert's many friends to know that she is able to walk without even the use of a cane and can do her work. It will be remembered that about two years ago she was in a dreadful automobile accident and for many months it was feared she never could walk. It even now seems like a miracle that she is able to walk after having her limbs and the bones so badly broken.

Camp Christian
Many of the older people of this community enjoyed a real thrill Thursday afternoon when they gathered at Camp Christian for service. The large tabernacle was completely filled and many standing on the outside. To the older people it was like the old time Methodist camp meeting of 40 years ago. It is perfectly marvelous the work that Rev. Billy Opie and his workers have accomplished on the old camp meeting grounds. The cabins have all been freshly painted, the tabernacle painted an aluminum color which, located in the center of lovely trees, makes it very attractive. During the afternoon and evening services Rev. Opie raised over $400, which shows the interest that is being taken in this new venture at Camp Christian. Next Sunday the Colonial Bell Ringers will be here. You will surely want to hear them.

A Tribute
About 6 o'clock Memorial day in the morning the hand of death touched Dr. F. M. Banker, beloved resident of this place for many years.

It is not an easy task to sum up the life of one who has been a close friend for many years. Words seem cold and unexpressive. There is a deeper feeling which comes from the innermost soul which seeks release in an effort to bring forth in the true light all of those good qualities for which Dr. Banker was loved and respected. As thoughts wander back through the years, there is recalled many little deeds of kindness and the thoughtfulness and deep concern which came in time of sickness and trouble.

Perchance we may be reaching far into the unknown, but we do feel that there was a word of cheer in that "Land to Come" Thursday morning of "Well done thou good and faithful servant".

After all, the most that any of us can leave is the love, the respect and the memory of a kindly, well spent life, which will linger longer in the hearts of men than all else.

If all those whom as new born babies Dr. Banker had greeted in this world; those whom he soothed and tended in sickness and suffering, and those whose eyes he had closed in death were to have been present at his funeral services, it would have been a thronged assemblage. His services were many times unpaid and, dare we say, often unappreciated, but the Master has said: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of one of these, ye have done it unto me".

Lee Center
The highway from the Berry corners east through Inlet is being improved by the county under the supervision of Supt. Fred W. Leake. The dangerous corner in front of the Thomas Bride home has been eliminated by cutting off a portion of the corner on A. H. Hill's land grading it up. It is reported that it will be graveled in the near future.

Noted among those from out of town at the Memorial Day program at the local Woodside cemetery were Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Berry, Mrs. J. J. Haas, son Stephen, Mrs. J. E. Haas, Mrs. Ada Carlson, Mrs. Nellie Biesecker, Mrs. Grace Reid, Mrs. Mary Tennant, Mrs. Frank Branigan, and two daughters, Mrs. Helen Aschenbrenner, Mrs. Thomas Coryell, Henry Herrick, Amboy, Mrs. Florence Sheppard, Josephine and Carolyn Frost, Mr. and Mrs. J. New Courses

The Compton high school will offer new courses this fall which should furnish the high school students of the community ample choice.

The board has decided to add classes in typing and bookkeeping to the course of study in Compton. Commercial arithmetic will also be offered, if there is sufficient demand for such a course.

The course in manual training will be changed to correspond more closely to agricultural wood-working or farm mechanics. The popular classes in Home economics will be continued with the course in clothing being given this fall.

These changes are in line with the policy of making the high school of greater service to the community.

There were quite a number from here who attended the baccalaureate sermon in Mendota Sunday evening.

Springfield, Ill., June 5 —(AP)—The Illinois Supreme court will decide the constitutionality of the law requiring applicants for relief to have lived in the state at least three years.

Leave to file a petition for mandamus testing the 1939 amendment to the relief act was granted by the court today to Charles Heydenreich and four other residents of Cook county.

The petition claimed Leo M. Lyons, Chicago relief administrator, denied the plaintiffs relief awards after they left the state in search of work and then returned. The case will be argued at the court's October term.

New Courses

The Compton high school will offer new courses this fall which should furnish the high school students of the community ample choice.

The board has decided to add classes in typing and bookkeeping to the course of study in Compton. Commercial arithmetic will also be offered, if there is sufficient demand for such a course.

The course in manual training will be changed to correspond more closely to agricultural wood-working or farm mechanics. The popular classes in Home economics will be continued with the course in clothing being given this fall.

These changes are in line with the policy of making the high school of greater service to the community.

There were quite a number from here who attended the baccalaureate sermon in Mendota Sunday evening.

Library Receives Books for Parents, Teachers to Study

A committee of members of the High School Parent-Teachers association has selected, bought and donated three books to the Dixon public library for the special use of high school parents and teachers.

The committee, composed of mothers of freshmen students, spent much time and interest in the selection of the books which are declared to be the best available in this field. Mrs. P. O. Heckman headed the committee.

The books selected are: "We, the Parents" by Sidonie Matsner Gruenberg. Any parent who has ever questioned his fitness to prepare a child to meet the hazards of modern living will welcome this book as an invaluable aid. Written by a foremost authority in the field of family relations, it treats informally yet with expert knowledge of those eternal matters which need re-interpretation as attitudes and conditions change from generation to generation.

How to maintain discipline in the home, how to teach children to handle money, how to explain the facts of birth, death, marriage and divorce, how to meet the challenge of movies and radio to old standards—these are some of the problems common to all parents which are considered in the light of events and ideas today as well as in the light of fundamental values. But fully as important as the book's factual content is the author's refreshingly sensible and undogmatic point of view. Her assumption that children are human beings to be enjoyed rather than sounding boards for scientific experimentation, is the thought underlying every statement. Scientific in the broadest and most up-to-date sense of the word, the advice offered here is also the fruit of sound common sense such as grandmothers, as well as the most modern mothers, can approve.

As writer and lecturer and director of the Child Study Association of America, Mrs. Gruenberg is widely known. Her book, "Your Child, Today and Tomorrow," was for years a standard work in its field.

Love at the Threshold is a book on dating, romance, and marriage. It is written by Frances Bruce Strain. In the words of the author, "this book is a guide to love as we know it today, to adventure of the sort one finds in the association of boys and girls together, and to the riches that come in the final joint relationship in marriage and home-making."

Addressed to older adolescent boys and girls, as well as to all young men and women who stand on the threshold of love, the book can be recommended with complete confidence both to the young readers themselves and to the parents and teachers who wish to recommend to them a sound, reliable and helpful book.

Mrs. Strain first discusses the immediate concerns of the dating years—dating with one person going steady, entertaining at home, group activities, etiquette, and the art of being an attractive and interesting person. The next section of the book is devoted to romance, the different types of girls and men and their attitude toward romance, the development of the love life and discussion of petting and love-making. The final part of the book is concerned with marriage, body mechanism, biologic fulfillment in marriage, home-making, the birth of a baby and finally the sex education of children.

Mrs. Strain's discussion of these matters is sane, frank and practical, sympathetic without sentimentality, the sort of sincere and straight-forward talk that clear headed young people of today appreciate. To read this book is to listen to the advice of an experienced counselor and friend.

The Adolescent by Ada Hart Arlitt, Ph. D. This book is written for parents whose children are over 12 years old and not yet 21. The period of adolescence presents more problems to the modern parents than any other period. During the pre-school age the child is largely under the influence of his parents, but as he grows old, he comes more and more under the influence of the "gang" and of the community. In addition, the child is undergoing tremendous psychological changes that set him at odds with his companions, his parents and himself. Thus parental guidance is most difficult when the child most needs it.

Recent research, especially in the study of individual cases, has yielded much new information of great practical values for parents confronted with this problem. In the same "simple and informal manner" of her earlier successful book, "The Child from One to Twelve," Dr. Arlitt has given the modern parent concise and readable advice on discipline, emotional control, character training and planning the day for the older child.

Ada Hart Arlitt is professor and head of the department of child care and training, school of household administration and graduate of the school of arts and sciences at the University of Cincinnati.
